Q & A

Dave Grohl

The Foo Fighters frontman, 46, on music, his kids and the DVD release of his docuseries Sonic Highways

On Sonic Highways you interview different musicians. What was that experience like?

Amazing. It was like going to college.

Did any of them make you nervous?

Dolly Parton. She was the only one who I had a cheat sheet for. I have so much respect for her and what she has accomplished.

You're a dad to three girls. What do they think about your fame?

They get it. When we're out and people ask for a photo, I say, "Sorry, not with my kids around." They know that I'm theirs, not everyone else's.

What advice do you give them?

To follow their dreams and to find what they love and do it. That's what I did with music—and being a dad!

The Duggars

I personally do not agree with everything the Duggars believe in, but show me children who are more polite, well-behaved and loving than those kids. If there were a lot more people in this world who acted like this family, can you even imagine how many fewer problems there would be?

Daisy via people.com

People UPDATE

PRISON BOUND Hernandez (left) will serve a life sentence for the killing of Odin Lloyd (above).

Ex-NFL Star Found Guilty

He was once a standout tight end in the NFL, signed to a $40 million contract with the New England Patriots. But on April 15 a jury convicted Aaron Hernandez, 25, of first-degree murder in the 2013 shooting death of his friend Odin Lloyd, 27. Prosecutors argued that Hernandez, acting with two other men, orchestrated the killing. The disgraced player stood stoically during the reading of the verdict before turning to his weeping mother and whispering, "It's okay." During the sentencing hearing Lloyd's family shared their pain with the judge—but also expressed forgiveness. "The day I laid my son to rest, I felt like I wanted to go into the hole with him," said Lloyd's mother, Ursula Ward. "I forgive the people who had a hand in my son's murder." Judge Susan Garsh sentenced Hernandez to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

THE EARRINGS ►

Designer Lorraine Schwartz hand-delivered jewelry options to Lively's hotel room. "The moment she tried these diamond knots on, everyone knew they were the ones," she says.

▲ THE CLUTCH

It takes one week to hand-set more than 20,000 crystals on this Judith Leiber koi fish minaudière, which costs $5,995.

▲ THE DRESS

"Blake remembered this gown from my fall 2012 collection," designer Monique Lhuillier tells PEOPLE of the high-drama piece with a leather-and-lace bodice. "It was waiting for a moment like this. She really oozed old-Hollywood glamour."

IN TOTAL
HER JEWELS
ARE WORTH MORE THAN $5 MILLION!

▲ THE RINGS

In addition to the Lorraine Schwartz 36-carat double leaf on her right hand (above), she wore her own pink diamond engagement ring and a 20-carat emerald-cut stone on her left hand.

IT UP AFTER
THE RED CARPET!

THE AFTERPARTY ENSEMBLE ►

No, your eyes aren't deceiving you: That's a skintight, see-through one-piece. "Blake is the first star to wear a sheer jumpsuit from my collection," says Lhuillier. "She likes to take chances."

AT JUST 22 MONTHS old, North West has already been to a fortress in Florence, the halls of Versailles and the front row at New York Fashion Week. So naturally, her baptism involved serious frequent-flier miles. On April 14 the jet-setting daughter of Kanye West and Kim Kardashian received one of Christianity's holiest sacraments in a 12th-century Armenian Apostolic Church in Jerusalem, napping peacefully while outside, crowds strained to get a peek. "It was such a beautiful experience for my family to have North baptized in Jerusalem," Kim, 34, tells PEOPLE. →

KARDASHIANS IN THE HOLY LAND! NORTH'S JERUSALEM BAPTISM

BY JENNIFER GARCIA

The baptismal service was conducted in Armenian and English.

“Kanye and I are so thankful.” It was all part of a family trip to the Middle East, including a visit to the Kardashian homeland of Armenia. On the way home the clan stopped by the Holy Land, cameras in tow. North’s aunt Khloé was on hand to share the milestone. “They have a very special bond,” says a family source. The family also had time for sightseeing in the Old City, visiting the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the site where Jesus is believed to have been crucified and buried. And North left with a very special keepsake: a cross from the St. James Cathedral, where the ceremony took place. “There was such an incredible energy there,” says the source. “It was an amazing experience.”

FAMILY ALBUM: The family visited the Church of the Holy Sepulchre (top). “Kanye thought the trip was really cool and emotional,” says a source. Right: Khloé getting a dance lesson from locals during a dinner in Armenia April 12.

MILEY CYRUS & PATRICK SCHWARZENEGGER INSIDE THEIR SPLIT

After five months together, Miley Cyrus and Patrick Schwarzenegger have put an end to their romance. “It’s not a break, it’s done,” says a source close to the couple. “He’s in college, and she’s focused on her music and career.” First spotted together late last year, the “Wrecking Ball” singer, 22, and her USC student beau, 21, quickly became inseparable, spending time with each other’s families and even working through a rough patch in March after Schwarzenegger was photographed seemingly getting close to a female pal while on spring break in Mexico. Despite the relationship’s end, Cyrus was in good spirits April 18 at a Rock and Roll Hall of Fame event in Cleveland, while Schwarzenegger partied with pals at Coachella. Adds the source: “They’re just in two different places in their lives.” —ELIZABETH LEONARD

TERRA JOLE & JOE GNOFFO OUR MIRACLE BABY

With four dogs, four cats and now a baby girl at home, life has never been so chaotic for reality stars Terra Jolé and Joe Gnoffo. “Everybody told us, ‘Say goodbye to sleep,’” says Gnoffo, 39, who stars with his fiancée, Jolé, 34, in Lifetime’s Little Women: Terra’s Little Family. But finally bringing home Penelope Charlevoix, born March 16, after spending three stressful days with their infant in intensive care, the blissed-out new mom and dad don’t mind the late nights. Adapting to life with their baby as little people hasn’t been easy—even something as simple as setting up a stroller is “a team situation,” says Jolé. “It’s like, ‘I’ll pass her to you, and you put her in. . . . Right, left, okay!’” Now weeks in, they’re creating all kinds of parenting hacks, such as making a changing table out of a TV stand. With Penelope having the same form of dwarfism as her mom, “I want her to feel like it’s okay to be different,” says Jolé. Adds Gnoffo: “We’ll make her confident. She’s our girl!” —MELODY CHIU “We’re so blessed,” Jolé says of their baby girl born 6 lbs. 2 oz.

SELENA GOMEZ LOVES HER CURVES

SORRY, BODY SHAMERS! Selena Gomez has no time for you. After photos of her wearing an itty-bitty pink bikini drew negative comments online, the star shut down the haters a day later on Instagram. “I love being happy with me yall #theresmoredtolove,” she captioned the April 16 snap (inset) of her relaxing in Mexico clad in a black one-piece. “She’s happy with herself,” says a Gomez source. “She had a great time with her girlfriends.” The getaway was both work and play for the actress, 22, who just finished shooting In Dubious Battle with

James Franco and is recording an album. “She’s really excited about her new music,” says the source. “Everything is really good right now.”

—MELODY CHIU

Attention on Gomez’s body “has never really been an issue for her,” says the source. “She’s in a great place.”

BEN & JESSA SEEWALD BABY ON THE WAY

5 MONTHS AFTER TYING
THE KNOT, ANOTHER
DUGGAR DAUGHTER IS EXPECTING

Jessa (Duggar) Seewald

is already thinking ahead to her first wedding anniversary, because with any luck that may just be the day she welcomes her first child. “We’re expecting!” Jessa, 22, says, giggling as she shares the exclusive—if not surprising—news with PEOPLE just five months after tying the knot with husband Ben Seewald, 19, Nov. 1. “I’m hoping I’m having triplets because I’ve been eating so much!” Adds Ben: “We are really looking forward to being parents and are so excited. We are getting ready, trying to prepare for the baby.”

Getting an early start on what they hope will be a big clan has always been a goal for the newlyweds. As one of the stars of TLC’s hit show 19 Kids and Counting, Jessa—the fifth of 19 children born to Michelle, 48, and Jim Bob Duggar, 49—agrees with Ben, the oldest of seven, who works for Jim Bob’s real estate company (and may become a pastor): When it comes to kids, the more the merrier. (For more on the Duggar family, see page 175.) Even before the Seewalds found out they were expecting, they were already looking into adoption, and that hasn't changed. "Finding out we're having a baby hasn't changed our hearts on adoption," says Jessa. The couple will continue that process as they go through a two-year waiting period for married couples required by the agency they've consulted. "There's a lot of paperwork," says Jessa. "We could get a start on that."

Meanwhile, Jessa, now heading into her second trimester and due on the same date the pair married, says the morning sickness that she has been battling is finally waning. "It was different every day," she says. "I thought I'd crave pickles and lemons because my mother did, but I couldn't stand them. And one day I suddenly couldn't do dairy. I would sit in bed and eat crackers, hoping the nausea would pass." Ben, for his part, kept a close watch, supporting his wife. "He's so sweet," Jessa says, "waiting on me hand and foot."

And though she says she'll be taking advice from her older sister Jill Dillard, 23, who just welcomed son Israel on April 6, Jessa admits she may choose not to think too much about her sibling's harrowing 70-hour labor. "Every birth story is unique," she says. "We think we want to go with a midwife and plan for a home birth, but I want to just be prepared that not everything may go as planned and try not to get too worried about it!" —ALICIA DENNIS

CATCHING UP WITH...

Mark Ruffalo

In Avengers: Age of Ultron (out May 1), you're back as the Hulk. Are your kids into superheroes?

They're really proud. The other day one of my daughters tapped a girl with a little Hulk key fob on her backpack and said, "My dad's the Hulk!" It's hilarious.

The Hulk gets romantic with Black Widow (played by Scarlett Johansson).

How was that?

She's my buddy, and from the first day of the first movie we hit it off. When you have someone you trust, it can be magical. We actually have the same birthday. You and Robert Downey Jr. (Tony Stark) have great chemistry too.

He's like the great older brother who just razzes you—and I love every single second of it.

QUESTIONS WITH CARLY RAE JEPSEN

THE SINGER WILL PERFORM AT CITY YEAR L.A.'S SPRING BREAK ON APRIL 25.

Tom Hanks lip-syncs your song in your "I Really Like You" video. Were you intimidated?

Tom was learning the lyrics, and there was one line he couldn't get. I timidly raised my hand and said, "I know the words." And for one brief, beautiful moment I found myself directing Tom Hanks.

You look spookily like a young Carly Simon!

Do you get that a lot? I do, which I take as a big compliment. I've spoken with her a few times over the phone, and we might have a little surprise cooked up for later this year.

How did you get involved with City Year?

Their focus is on education for underprivileged children, and I grew up in a house full of teachers. A strong education is something that all children deserve.

TINA KNOWLES LAWSON MY DREAM WEDDING

BEYONCE AND SOLANGE'S STYLISH
MOM SHARES INTIMATE DETAILS FROM HER 'MAGICAL DAY'

"There was a lot of emotion and tears from both of us," says the bride (below, with Richard and his kids Bianca and Richard II, plus Blue Ivy and Solange's son Julez, who were the flower girl and ring bearer).

Every day for years Tina Knowles has listened to India.Arie's "Ready for Love" and envisioned her dream man. So when she tied the knot on a sun-soaked yacht in Newport Beach, Calif., on April 12, it was the perfect tune to walk down the aisle to. At 61, Tina has found her happily ever after: actor Richard Lawson, 68. "It couldn't have been more perfect," says the bride, who has taken her husband's last name.

Surrounded by loved ones—including her daughters Beyoncé and Solange and their husbands, Jay Z and Alan Ferguson; Kelly Rowland; Michelle Williams;

Lawson's children Bianca and Richard II; and Samuel L. Jackson—the couple threw a nautical bash filled with music and dancing. As for the all-white theme, it's become a bit of a family tradition explains Tina, who wore a gown by Romona Keveza and planned the festivities herself. "Beyoncé started it, and then Kelly and Solange had all-white weddings," she says. "It's just elegant, and white represents the purity of love."

The duo, who have been pals for more than 30 years and reconnected a year and a half ago, got some nudging from an unlikely source, her granddaughter Blue Ivy: "[In September] we went on a boat with Beyoncé and Jay Z, and when we came out one night dressed to go to dinner, Blue said, 'Oh, ya'll look beautiful. When are ya'll getting married?' Richard said, 'Oh, Blue, soon. Do you approve?' And she said yes. That's the first time we talked seriously about getting married."

Now Tina hopes her romance inspires others. "There was a time when I doubted if I would find love again," she says about her divorce from Mathew Knowles in 2011. "But I was determined to be happy, and God sent somebody into my life. You can find love at any age. You just have to go for it." —JEFF NELSON

Kim Richards: Rehab After Arrest?

The reality star—charged with public intoxication, trespassing and battery—is resisting rehab, a source says

After battling alcoholism for years—and defending herself against allegations of a relapse during the most recent season of Bravo's hit series The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills—Kim Richards was arrested for public intoxication, trespassing, resisting an officer and battery after a drunken altercation at the Beverly Hills Hotel on April 16. According to a police statement, Richards, 50, "was displaying symptoms of alcohol intoxication, including slurred speech and belligerent, insolent behavior, cursing at the officers and passively resisting arrest." As a "frequent guest" of the hotel, a source tells PEOPLE, Richards spent the first part of her evening having dinner alone in the Polo Lounge then stayed for several cocktails at the bar, where she became aggressive, loud and insulting to other guests. "It was clear that she was very drunk," adds the source. Richards, a mom of four, publicly struggled with addiction and spent time in a treatment facility for alcohol abuse in 2011. "As of right now, she is saying no to rehab," says a longtime friend. "But people are trying to get her to go." And though her future remains unclear, Richards's well-being is on everyone's mind. "I'm thinking of her," Watch What Happens Live host Andy Cohen told Ryan Seacrest in an interview April 17. "The family is obviously very concerned. I hope it leads to some peaceful resolution for her and her family."

Tim Tebow Returns to the NFL

The Philadelphia Eagles sign the quarterback

After his 2013 release from the New York Jets, many in and around the NFL called Tim Tebow's football career over. But for two years, Tebow, 27, kept up his training regimen—from daily cardio workouts to regular sessions with Tom House, a coach who has also worked with New England Patriots quarterback (and three-time Super Bowl MVP) Tom Brady—in preparation for another shot in the NFL. On April 20 Tebow signed a one-year contract as a backup quarterback with the Philadelphia Eagles. Tebow, a part-time Good Morning America contributor, tells PEOPLE he's ready. "Football really means a lot to me," he says. "I wouldn't work as hard as I do if I didn't care so much about it."

Blue's Missy Peregrym filed for divorce on April 6 after less than nine months of marriage. The couple wed in June 2014 and have no children together.

CONTROVERSY

NHL Los Angeles Kings forward Jarret Stoll, 32, was arrested on April 17 in Las Vegas for suspicion of cocaine possession. Stoll is dating Dancing with the Stars cohost and sports reporter Erin Andrews, 37. The L.A. Kings released a statement on Twitter saying they are conducting a thorough investigation and are withholding further comment.

DEATHS

Jonathan Crombie, 48, who played Gilbert on Anne of Green Gables, died April 15 in New York City after suffering a brain hemorrhage. His sister Carrie says a "huge, wonderful celebration

PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING BACK

Jesse Tyler Ferguson

The Modern Family star's brand of bow ties raises money for marriage equality

I wanted to get into the fashion world and also do something philanthropic. My husband, Justin Mikita, had the idea to combine the two: Create a bow-tie line where the proceeds go to organizations fighting for marriage equality. Tie the Knot is a great play on words, and it's a fun way to support the cause. Being married was something I always dreamed of but never thought of as attainable: I grew up in a time where being gay meant that you weren't able to be a part of the institution of marriage. Look, if you want to get married, you should be able to. If you don't, that's great—but we really wanted to. [The couple wed in 2013.] I didn't know if it would make me feel different, but there was one day when I got to mark the "Married" box while filling out paperwork at the doctor, and I got extremely emotional. It made me feel like I'm part of something bigger. It's something everyone should have the right to.

The couple (with their dog Leaf) have raised more than $500,000.

Huisman and Lively make a whopper
of a love story feel real.

1 The Age of Adaline

Blake Lively shows depth and vulnerability as a woman who stays forever young

No.

MOVIE

ROMANCE Most of us would need magic to live to 109, much less look as good as medical miracle Adaline (Lively). But the 29-forever beauty behaves as if she's cursed, shunning love. Then she meets Ellis (Game of Thrones' Michiel Huisman), and The Age of Adaline blooms into an enveloping romance. Lively is winning and wise as a gal who's been around a long, long time. She not only has classic diction and a vintage wardrobe that would make any fashionista's heart flutter, she's picked up several languages and is quite a savvy investor. Meanwhile the fine supporting cast, including Harrison Ford and Kathy Baker as Huisman's parents, grounds the fanciful story, making it feel, well, ageless. The divine Ellen Burstyn sets the emotional stakes even higher as Adaline's elderly daughter Flemming. (April 24, PG-13)

No. 2 Happyish
The pursuit of bliss gets harder (and funnier) with age
TV COMEDY Grown-ups inevitably grow down and then out. That may not be shocking news, but the theme still feels fresh in this whimsical series, which follows married couple Thom (Steve Coogan) and Lee (Kathryn Hahn) as they navigate a world full of hard decisions: Work meeting or family dinner? Viagra or Prozac? Happyish has a lot of fun with these daily downers, thanks to guest stars like Ellen Barkin and dream sequences featuring suicidal (and frisky) Keebler elves. (Showtime, April 26, 9:30 p.m.)

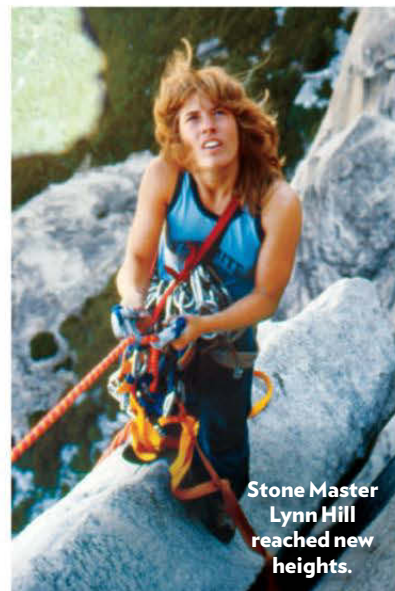

Hahn and Coogan celebrate getting older.

No. 3 Josh Groban, Stages
MUSIC BROADWAY The American treasure flaunts his rich baritone on his sixth full-length album. This collection of musical showstoppers and warhorses ranges across the classics, from Carousel to Sunday in the Park with George, but Groban's voice is timeless. He arguably cheats a little, tossing in standards that were first sung on the movie screen, including "Pure Imagination" from Charlie and the Chocolate Factory and, of course, "Somewhere over the Rainbow" from The Wizard of Oz—but come on: This is a guy who knows how to make happy little bluebirds fly. Then there are the duets. When he teams with Kelly Clarkson for "All I Ask of You" from The Phantom of the Opera, you'll wonder why neither of them has yet graced the Great White Way.

Groban shows you just how a show tune should be sung.

No wizards but plenty of drama in this adaptation of J.K. Rowling's political tale

TV DRAMA The opening images of this three-part miniseries, based on J.K. Rowling's grim 2012 novel, conjure England at its most chocolate-box enchanting: emerald hills, trickling waterfalls, stone archways. But it's cracked, all of it. Set in the fictional village of Pagford, the story is about a local election and the contemporary economic, social and class issues churning beneath the charm. Michael Gambon—farther than a Hogwarts Express ride away from his role as Professor Dumbledore in that other Rowling project—tops a stellar British cast. It's a surprisingly gripping production that makes for thoughtful pre-election-year viewing. (HBO, April 29, 8 p.m.)

TV DOCUMENTARY For 25 years South Central Los Angeles was a playground for Lonnie Franklin Jr., who is formally suspected of killing 10 women and believed by many to have killed up to 20 more. No. 9 The Best New Books

Toni Morrison and Jon Krakauer return in fine form, and a modern 'spinster' explains why she's proud to own the name EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

Jon Krakauer Missoula

NONFICTION After learning that a friend was raped by a man she trusted, the Into the Wild author channeled his outrage into this expertly researched tome that centers on a rash of sexual assaults in the college town from which the book derives its name. Equal parts riveting and horrifying, it's a hell of a read—and a necessary one.

Kate Bolick Spinster

MEMOIR Awakened and inspired by the lives of five historical women, Bolick revels in her own singledom in this blazingly smart memoir, which argues that "spinster" should be a coveted destination, not a dirty word. Her eloquent, provocative story illustrates how charting a unique course can make any life truly singular.

Toni Morrison God Help the Child

NOVEL She's 84 and she's won the Nobel Prize, but Toni Morrison is not done. In these masterful pages, she tells the story of Bride, a beautiful woman born so blue-black that her "high yellow" mother withholds her affection. That early wound leads Bride into often-troubling choices. The themes here can be brutal—abuse, murder, neglect—but the voices and fierce emotions will win your heart. Seductive or raging, bewildered or heartbroken, they are all, in the end, hopeful.

GREAT NEW NONFICTION

Bruce Eric Kaplan I Was a Child

Remember how other kids' houses each had a smell, but you couldn't smell your own? If you do, cartoonist (and Girls producer) Kaplan's wry, sharply observed memoir is for you.

Elizabeth Bard Picnic in Provence

Dotted with tasty recipes (Lavender Honey and Thyme Ice Cream!), this memoir about a young couple's adventures opening an ice cream shop in Provence is a treat.

Alexandra Robbins The Nurses

The unsung heroes of the medical world get their own full opera here in a funny, intimate and often jaw-dropping account of life behind the scenes on the harried hospital floor.

campy good time. A Nightmare on Elm Street's Robert Englund is outfitted with a hook hand, a fake leg and eye patch in this Sharknado-esque TV movie, which is full of enough decidedly cheap special effects, scares and laughs to make even the harshest of horror critics crack a smile while watching the carnage from between their fingers. (fronted by Michael Angelakos) stole the hearts of hipsters with the '09 debut Manners, then earned mainstream airplay with "Take a Walk," the breakout single from 2012's Gossamer. This album rocks the same vibe: synth pop complemented by driving guitars. What's different is the deeply personal lyrics, which address the singer's rocky past (depression, a suicide attempt and substance abuse). In "Whole Life Story," he sings about the mixed blessings of fame: "Sorry, darling," Angelakos sings to his wife, Kristina Mucci. "How could you forgive me when our life's some story out for them to buy?"

Cleveland Kidnapping Victims

How We Survived

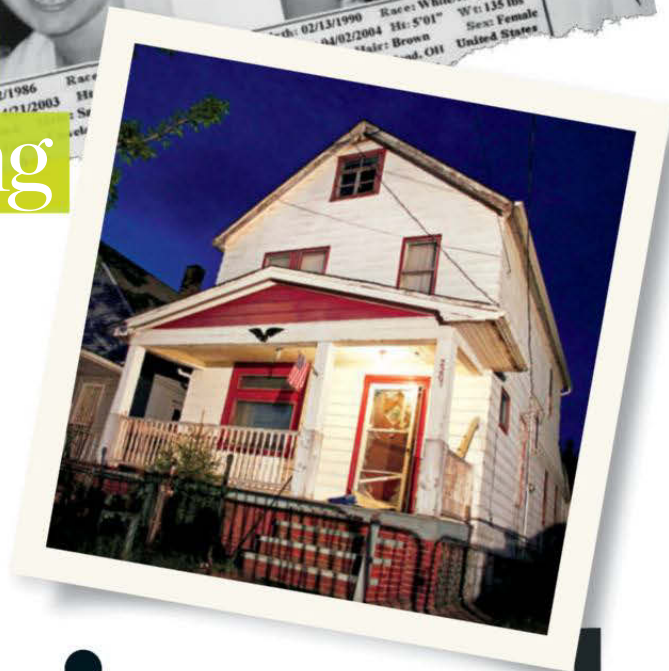

ARIEL CASTRO HELD THEM HOSTAGE FOR A DECADE, BUT HE COULDN'T KILL THEIR SOULS. TWO YEARS AFTER THEIR INCREDIBLE ESCAPE, AMANDA BERRY AND GINA DEJESUS SHARE THEIR STORY

It was an unremarkable house in a working class Cleveland neighborhood, but for Amanda Berry and Gina DeJesus, 2207 Seymour Ave. was a living hell. Kidnapped in 2003 and 2004, respectively, by a bus driver named Ariel Castro, the girls and a third victim, Michelle Knight, were kept in chains, denied adequate nourishment and raped repeatedly by Castro before the dramatic escape that captured the world's attention in May 2013. Their ordeal was a stunning reminder of humanity's potential for depravity—yet two years later, what stands out are the lessons in resilience. Berry, now 29, and DeJesus, 25, are happy and healing, living in Cleveland with their overjoyed, supportive families nearby; Berry is raising Jocelyn, 8, the daughter Castro fathered during their captivity. In a new book, Hope: A Memoir of Survival in Cleveland, excerpted exclusively below, the women—who will be interviewed by ABC's Robin Roberts in a one-hour special on April 28—open up about their nightmare and the unquenchable hope that kept them going. “You had to stay positive, because if you didn’t, there was no reason to survive it,” Berry tells PEOPLE’s Elaine Aradillas. No longer in touch with Knight, who wrote her own memoir last year (“We wish her well, but we’re different people,” Berry says), DeJesus is working toward earning her high school diploma, while Berry is focused on raising her daughter, but both have high hopes for their futures. Their grit should serve them well. “Not a lot of people,” DeJesus says, “make it out of something like that alive.”

Writing their book “was therapeutic,” says Gina (near left, with Amanda on March 26 in Cleveland). Above: the house on Seymour Ave.

Amanda, Sept. 3, 2013

My phone chimes. A text message. Who could that be? It's after midnight. Jocelyn is asleep next to me, just like every night since she was born six years ago.

I'm staring at a message from my aunt Susie: Did you hear that he killed himself? I freeze. I start to feel sick.

How dare he do this? How dare he? He kidnapped me, chained me like a dog, raped me over and over. But he was Jocelyn's father. She loves him, and he loved her.

Ariel Castro deserved to be in jail, forever. But now that he's suddenly dead, I don't know what to feel, and that confusion is running in rivers down my cheeks.

The journey that led her here began on April 21, 2003. Then 16, a day before her birthday, Amanda accepts a ride from Castro as she leaves her job at Burger King. Amanda knows his daughter Angie and agrees to stop at his house to see her. Amanda's reasoning: "I know this family, and they are nice people," she writes.

"C'mon, I'll show you upstairs," he says. We walk into a big bedroom and then a smaller one beyond it. And he suddenly blocks the door.

"Pull down your pants!"

"No!" I shout. I am panicking and can't believe what he just said.

"Take me home! I want to go home!"

"Pull down your pants!" He has turned so scary—his voice, his eyes. I do what he says. I stand there, crying, my jeans around my ankles. Why didn't I see this coming? How could I be so stupid?

Castro rapes her, then chains her in his basement. Day after day the rapes continue, both in the basement and in an upstairs bedroom.

After the first nights I lost my voice screaming, so I don't bother anymore. Nobody can hear me over the radio [he has on]. Why did I agree to come here? I made a bad decision, and now I will probably die because of it.

When I've been here four days he turns on the news. I see my mom. I'm crying but happy I'm on the news. That means people are looking for me.

House of Horrors

1. The cluttered basement served as a hiding place where Castro could stash his victims if outsiders were coming to the house. 2. The chains used to keep the girls from running away. 3. Amanda turned her bedroom into a classroom for her daughter Jocelyn and followed the school calendar: "I just wanted her to be really smart." 4. Castro (in a mug shot) hunged himself a month after he was sentenced to life in prison without parole.

If You Were Exposed to, or Harmed by, ASBESTOS or ASBESTOS-CONTAINING Products Made, Distributed or Sold by THE FLINTKOTE COMPANY or FLINTKOTE MINES LIMITED,

Please read this Notice of Voting Rights and Hearing to consider whether to approve Reorganization.

TYPES OF PRODUCTS

During the 1930s to the 1980s, products sold by The Flintkote Company and Flintkote Mines Limited (the “Debtors”) may have contained asbestos. These products could have included floor tile, roofing shingles, joint compound, cement pipe, asphalt and other products.

Persons or entities exposed to, or harmed by, the Debtors’ asbestos or asbestos-containing products may have personal injury, wrongful death or other claims against the Debtors. You do not need to (i) have been diagnosed, (ii) have symptoms, or (iii) be impaired to be affected by the Plan.

If you believe you may have been exposed to, or harmed by the Debtors’ products, you may be entitled to vote on the terms of the Reorganization. You should carefully read this notice and the important documents located at <http://www.flintkotebankruptcy.com>.

PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

The Debtors have filed for bankruptcy. On February 9, 2015, the Debtors filed a modified Joint Plan of Reorganization (the “Plan”) with the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the “Bankruptcy Court”). The Plan includes the terms of a settlement reached between the Debtors and their former indirect parent company, Imperial Tobacco Canada Limited (“ITCAN”). The Plan has been jointly proposed by the Debtors, the Asbestos Claimants Committee and the Future Claimants Representative (collectively, the “Plan Proponents”). As background, the Plan is a modified version of a bankruptcy plan on which Debtors previously solicited votes in 2008 and 2009, and which was confirmed by the Bankruptcy Court on December 21, 2012 (the “Original Plan”).

A document describing the Plan’s changes (the “Disclosure Supplement”), which the Bankruptcy Court approved on March 17, 2015, and a copy of the Plan itself and voting materials (a “Resolicitation Package”), has been mailed to known holders of claims against the Debtors or their lawyers.

THE TRUST

The Plan provides for a trust to be established to pay eligible asbestos personal injury claims against the Debtors (the “Trust”). The Plan states that all current and future holders of asbestos personal injury claims will be forever prohibited from asserting claims directly against the Debtors and other parties protected under the Plan, including ITCAN. Such persons can receive money only from the Trust. The Plan and the Disclosure Supplement have important additional details and are available at <http://www.flintkotebankruptcy.com>.

SUPPLEMENTAL SETTLEMENT BAR ORDER

Under the Plan, ITCAN will also obtain protection from certain claims by a settlement bar order, which is described more particularly in the Plan and Disclosure Supplement.

VOTING PROCEDURES

The Bankruptcy Court has issued an order describing who can vote on the Plan, how to vote, and how votes will be counted. The Disclosure Supplement has information that will help you decide whether and how to vote on the Plan if you are entitled to do so. Votes cast on the Original Plan will be counted as votes on the Plan, unless a holder changes such vote. If you voted on the Original Plan and do not wish to change your vote, you do not need to submit a ballot. If you did not vote on the Original Plan, you may obtain and cast a ballot, which would be subject to the Plan Proponents’ right to object. To be counted, a completed ballot must be received by the Voting Agent at the address below by 4:00 p.m. (prevailing Eastern time) on June 2, 2015. Any ballot received after that deadline will not be counted.

Proof of an asbestos personal injury or wrongful death claim does not need to be filed with the Bankruptcy Court. Special procedures have been established for holders of asbestos personal injury and wrongful death claims to vote on the Plan. Lawyers for holders of these claims may vote on the Plan on behalf of their clients if authorized by their client. If you are unsure whether your lawyer is authorized to vote on your behalf, please contact your lawyer.

THE HEARING TO CONFIRM THE PLAN

A hearing to confirm the Plan will be held before the Honorable Mary F. Walrath, United States Bankruptcy Judge, at the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, 824 Market Street, 5th Floor, Wilmington, Delaware 19801, commencing on August 10, 2015 at 10:30 a.m. (prevailing Eastern time). You may attend the hearing but are not required to do so.

OBJECTING TO THE PLAN

Objections to the Plan are limited to changes between the Original Plan and the Plan and must be submitted in writing and received by July 8, 2015 to be considered. All objections must comply with the requirements in the notice of the Confirmation Hearing, available at <http://www.flintkotebankruptcy.com>.

HOW TO OBTAIN DOCUMENTS

If you would like additional information about the Plan, Disclosure Supplement and the Trust (including copies of the Plan and the Disclosure Supplement), you may contact the Debtors’ Voting Agent at (800) 290-0537 or visit <http://www.flintkotebankruptcy.com>.

Documenting Their Ordeal

Not long after her capture, Gina (near right) wrote a letter (below) to her family and asked Castro to send it, but he refused.

Amanda (far right) kept a "journal" using every scrap of paper she could find. In the note here, addressed to her sister Beth on Jan. 9, 2009, she reported that Castro said he'd seen Beth that day. The journal "was kind of like a phone call to my family telling them whatever I wanted them to know."

you what I know you miss me and I miss all over you Mom dad I love you don't give up hope and I am not dead dead and not hurt I am okay. I love you and to me

"Your mom looks really upset," he says. He has an odd look on his face, and then I realize: He's proud.

Almost exactly a year after the day he abducted her, he kidnaps another girl, 14-year-old Gina DeJesus. Like Amanda, Gina knows one of his daughters, and he uses that as a ruse to get her to his house. Unbeknownst to either of his subsequent victims, Michelle Knight has also been his prisoner in a bedroom since Aug. 22, 2002.

Gina, April 2004

Days and days are passing. He leaves me in the cold basement all day, then makes me sleep with him all night. He gropes me, then falls asleep. The chains are digging into me, my whole body aches.

I used to think time moved too slowly in social studies class but it's nothing like now. I hate how he strokes my hair, how he wants me to sit on the couch with him. It's like he thinks we are friends. I am terrified.

He eventually introduces his captives to one another and moves Michelle and Gina into the same bedroom. He plays the three off one another so they won't unite against him. They dream of escape but they are almost constantly chained.

Gina, 2004

One day he comes into the living room with a gun. "Let's play a game," he says. He shows us that it is loaded with one bullet.

He explains the game: If I am willing to take the risk, he will put the gun to my head and pull the trigger. If I live, he'll give me a chance to put the gun to his head. "Okay," I tell him.

I'm nervous. But I can't stand what's happening in this house anymore. "I'm ready." He puts the gun to my temple and pulls the trigger. I hear a click.

"Let's keep playing," he says. "Will you pull the trigger on me? If you do, it means you hate me. And if you can't, it means you don't hate me."

Doesn't he know that I'd love to blow his head off? He hands me the gun. I put it right to his head and pull the trigger. Click.

Now I think I might be in big trouble, but he stands up and doesn't say a word. It's like he doesn't care at all. Despite Castro's efforts, fragile friendships begin to form among the girls. One day he locks all three in the basement while his grown children, who've been asking why they can't go upstairs, stop by.

Amanda, 2005

In the basement we all start talking a little. It's awkward at first. I mention that I like Eminem, Gina says she's into Christina Aguilera. She misses her family and her mom's cooking. The more we talk, the more I like them. It feels good to know that we're all feeling the same things.

In March 2006 Amanda is devastated to see on the news that her mother has died of a heart attack at age 43. Then another jolt: In April she realizes she is pregnant.

Amanda, 2006

I think my mom sent me this baby. It's her way of giving me an angel. But I worry about what he's going to do.

'When Jocelyn was born I cried. It was something to be happy for, even though it was a bad situation'
—GINA DEJESUS

Living Life & Loving It

What do you appreciate most about being free?

Gina: Family, being able to get in your car, go to the mall...

Amanda: The little things. I love when the sun is hot and beaming.

How do those long years of captivity feel to you now?

Amanda: Unreal. I can't believe that happened to me. But it sometimes feels it's not even real that I'm home.

Gina: It's all a dream.

How did you pass the time?

Amanda: I would just constantly stay busy.

Gina: I would sew and listen to music and draw and dance.

Did it help having other people in the house?

Gina: I think it didn't matter in the beginning, right?

Amanda: It wasn't like we knew what the other was going through. We were in our own little worlds.

When did it change?

Amanda: After Jocelyn was born, that's when me and Gina started talking a little more.

Describe Ariel Castro.

Gina: Always prepared.

Amanda: People see him as chubby, but he was a lot of muscle. To be around him was scary. He had these cold black eyes. We were afraid we were going to die.

Did you wonder why his neighbors didn't know about you?

Gina: Yeah. We could smell the barbecue, smell cut grass. I would get irritated because they were having fun and not paying attention to what's going on right on their own street.

Amanda: People don't pay enough attention.

What made you attempt to escape that day?

Amanda: I just wanted to be out of there and get my daughter out of there. I thought if this didn't go right, I'd probably never get home.

Gina: I don't think I would've had it in me.

How much does Jocelyn know about what happened?

Amanda: I'm going to wait until she's older and can make her own thoughts and not have anybody influence how she feels. It's hard when I'm with her and people ask questions—I don't want them to say the wrong thing.

Why aren't you in touch with Michelle?

Gina: I think we all did like each other at one point, but then [Ariel] played us against each other so we couldn't trust people.

Amanda: I mean, we all went through something really bad that only the three of us will ever understand. I wish her the best in the future.

What are your dreams for the future?

Gina: Hopefully a family. And I want to design clothes or own my own business. There is so much we could do.

Amanda: I want to help people who've been through what we've been through. And raise my daughter to be a great, great woman.

How do you feel now?

Amanda: Loving life. We're happy and we're with our families. That's all we wanted for 10 years.

A Mother's Heartbreak

Amanda's mom, Louwana Miller (here in 2003), a factory worker, died of a heart attack in 2006—never knowing what had become of the younger of her two daughters. Amanda now lives with her sister Beth and Beth's family (Gina, the youngest of three, is planning to buy a house for her family in the Cleveland suburbs). "I recorded my mom [on the news] at vigils and stuff before she died," Amanda says. "I would rewind and hear her voice" in the house on Seymour Avenue. "I feel like she's definitely here with me now."

Michelle told me that he beat her to make her miscarry. Will he let me carry my baby?

Amanda gives birth to baby Jocelyn on Christmas Day, assisted by Michelle.

"It's a girl," he says, smiling. "Wow!"

He seems so excited to be a father again. A couple of weeks ago, when the baby started kicking, I reached for his hand and placed it on my stomach. I knew my baby would be safer if he was excited about being a new father. "We're a family," he tells me.

Smitten with the daughter he calls Pretty, Castro takes her out to play and to church as she gets older. He removes Amanda's chains, and later Gina's and Michelle's, when Jocelyn is 2 and has noticed them (Amanda tells her they're a bracelet).

I know it's wrong, but I feel closer to him. I appreciate that he treats Jocelyn so well and buys her clothes and toys. I desperately want Jocelyn to have a normal life. On the days that he helps me do that, I actually feel some affection for him. I'm so confused. How can he be good one minute and so cruel the next?

When Jocelyn is nearly 5, Amanda asks Castro for a desk, a whiteboard and other school supplies and sets up a pretend kindergarten.

Amanda, Aug. 24, 2011

"Are you ready?" I ask her.

"Yes!" she says.

She sits at her Dora desk in her little chair. She surrounds herself with her dolls, which are almost as big as she is. She calls them her classmates.

I sit on the bed facing her. We have American flags. "Please stand for the Pledge of Allegiance," I say. She stands at her desk. I stand next to her. We put our hands over our hearts. As Jocelyn grows, the prison becomes harder for Castro to maintain. He complains of stress headaches, and on Nov. 6, 2012, he's fired from his bus-driving job.

Amanda, November 2012

"When this is over, I wonder what they'll call me in the newspapers," he says. "Maybe the 'Cleveland Kidnaper'? Or maybe 'the Monster.'"

He knows that Jocelyn, the person he loves most, is the one who could bring it all crashing down. One day [before he was fired] he brought her home a bagged lunch from school. She was so excited. "I want to go to real school now. Can I please?" she said to him.

"No," he said. "It's not time yet." "When is it time?" she asked.

On May 6, 2013, the long years of waiting finally end. Castro leaves the house and for the first time forgets to lock his prisoners in their rooms, and Amanda, disbelieving and terrified, makes her way to the locked front storm door.

Amanda

Oh, thank God! A guy steps up onto the porch. "Can you help me please!" I scream. He looks confused. Maybe even scared.

"Please, help me! I'm Amanda Berry! I've been kidnapped for 10 years! Help me!"

Now another guy is asking an old lady on the street what's going on. She says I can't be Amanda Berry because Amanda Berry died years ago. No! I'm right here. Who cares who I am? Can't they help me?

The tall guy comes up on the porch, and he pulls the door. He kicks the bottom panel of the storm door a couple of times. "Go ahead, finish kicking it out, Mama," he says.

I start slamming the panel, kicking it with my sneakers. Finally I smash out enough of it for me to squeeze through. I reach in and grab Joce. She is screaming. "I want my Daddy! Where's Daddy?"

We're out.

Gina

We hear loud noises from downstairs. He must have caught Amanda trying to escape and he's beating her. "Oh no, she got caught," I say to Michelle. "He's coming for us next."

We hear sirens. Then we hear somebody coming up the stairs. We're terrified. Somebody in the hall is shouting: "Cleveland Police!"

Michelle pushes the door open and runs into the hallway. I hear her yelling, "You saved us! You saved us!"

I'm hanging back. Maybe they are fake cops. Maybe it's just some of his friends in costumes. I peek around the corner and see two cops in uniform.

"What's your name?" one asks me.

"My name is Georgina DeJesus."

His jaw drops. It's like he's just seen a ghost. "We found them. We found them," he says into his radio.

Then he looks at me and says, "We've been looking for you for a really long time."

We walk through the front door, which is all smashed up. There are so many people outside, cop cars and flashing lights everywhere.

It's so bright it hurts my eyes. ●

Michelle Knight Update

Since Michelle Knight, 34, appeared on PEOPLE's cover when her own memoir, Finding Me, came out last spring, she has continued to share her experiences as Ariel Castro's first victim. "I'm able to talk about it without crying," she recently told a group of 1,200 at a luncheon for the Cleveland Rape Crisis Center. A Lifetime movie version of her book, called Cleveland Abduction, will air on May 2. Still struggling, she has spent time at an inpatient facility where equine therapy was part of the treatment. She's concentrating on giving back: On the second anniversary of her rescue, Knight will host a Cleveland event to benefit the MetroHealth Foundation, which has provided her with free healthcare.

THE OSCAR WINNER AND FIRST-TIME DIRECTOR SHARES WHAT HE’S LEARNED ABOUT MESSING UP, GROWING OLDER AND STAYING COOL WHEN MICHAEL JACKSON PRANK-CALLS YOU By AILI NAHAS

He has played a gladiator, a biblical hero and plenty of other tough guys, but for Russell Crowe, taking on directing for the first time on the sweeping historical drama The Water Diviner was “terrifying.” Says the Australian actor: “It’s so intimate. It’s like everything about you is on display.” That’s uneasy territory for the fiercely private father of Charles, 11, and Tennyson, 8 (he split with wife Danielle Spencer in October 2012). His early fame, temper and tumultuous love life brought him a torrent of tabloid notoriety. Now 51, Crowe is clearheaded and candid about past mistakes. “I don’t see how it’s possible to live without regrets,” he says. “But you can chase all that stuff down, or you can just get on with it.” Here’s what he’s learned along the way.

the happy comes straight from the fruit.™

Kids love the sweet taste of Juicy Juice, made from real fruit picked at its ripest, juiciest peak. It's 100% juice, with no added sugar – goodness, made juicy!™

juicyjuice.com

Fifteen years after his Oscar-winning turn in Gladiator, “my love for the job hasn’t diminished,” says Crowe.

Crowe (with pal and fellow Aussie Nicole Kidman in 2002, left) owns a ranch and a soccer team Down Under. Below: with Olga Kurylenko in The Water Diviner.

Don't get complacent

Feeling pressure comes with the job. You've got to keep your ambition bright and shiny. I still play lead roles like Noah, but I get just as much playing a secondary lead like Javert in Les Misérables. If you love playing characters, all that happens is they change. I have a simple love for doing the job.

Fame can be funny

Michael Jackson would prank-call me. He would speak in some kind of a rough voice, and I'd say, "Who is this?" and he'd say, "Oh, don't worry, Russell, it's Michael!" He always wanted to chat afterward. He must have trusted I wouldn't be bothered.

Insist on free-range kids

My boys tend to be very cerebral. But I can get them excited about various things. I taught them archery—that's a hard thing when you've got little hands. They're both really good at it. I've told them, "Little skills you pick up when you're young will

'I challenge myself, but I don't always meet them. If you won every time, it would be boring' bring you a lot of pleasure when you're older." We also go to the bush. That's the most important thing for us as a little tribe of Crowe men, just being where there is space.

Learn from the past

I don't see how you're educating yourself if you don't recognize moments where you weren't necessarily at your best. There are thousands of fundamentally embarrassing moments that I wish I could turn around. If you're lucky, you pull yourself up: "Oh, I know this one—I don't have to do that again."

Be curious—but skeptical

I met Tom Cruise when he was married to Nicole [Kidman, Crowe's friend]. I thought I'd find out about what he was into. I found a video about Scientology and watched it. I brought it up with Tom, and he was really cool. He didn't try to sell me a pair of shoes. He said, "If it's something that interests you, you'll pursue it." But I've never graced [Scientology's] doorway.

Face aging head-on

I never put [much thought] into my age at all until I turned 48. It sounded lumpy. It's a heavy journey because I can't outrun it anymore. Over time on film sets, I've gotten tears in both Achilles, shin splints, bone-marrow edemas under both knees, a rib that pops off my upper thoracic and a degenerating hip. But those are scars that I've earned.

Roll with the punches

These last four years have been kind of ridiculous: the separation [from wife Danielle] and a whole bunch of other complications. However, it's also been a period where I've spent some of the greatest times with my kids, times we'll remember forever. That's what you do, right? It's life. ●

PROUD DAD
Crowe (with Spencer and sons Charles and Tennyson in 2010) says his greatest joy is "knowing my kids are happy."

WOMEN
AT WAR

REAL-LIFE GI JANES

AS THE NATION DEBATES COMBAT ROLES FOR WOMEN, A SELECT FEW HAVE QUIETLY SERVED ALONGSIDE THE SPECIAL FORCES, TAKING ENEMY FIRE IN WAR ZONES AND RISKING THEIR LIVES FOR THEIR COUNTRY

In pitch black, as Kat Kaelin and her unit of Army Special Forces made a stealthy advance on the walled Afghanistan compound of suspected terrorists, gunfire suddenly pop-pop-popped the quiet of the Ranger regiment's night raid. "Our [bomb expert] was climbing up the side of the compound when a guy came out and shot, then pushed his wife in the doorway as a human shield," Kaelin, just 23 at the time, tells PEOPLE now, four years later. "There were rocket-propelled grenades going off. I found a secure spot and dropped to one knee with my weapon ready." But her job in the shadows alongside the Army Rangers was more complicated than the M-4 rifle strapped in front and the M-9 Beretta handgun at her hip. For the Nevada National Guard staff sergeant, first trained to drive military-equipment trucks in Iraq, now carried other vital tools on these secret, sometimes deadly missions into Taliban and Al-Qaeda hiding places: Jolly Ranchers and a purple or green head scarf. "It would be the middle of the night, and the women and children in these compounds would be so scared," Kaelin says. The candy in her pocket showed that she wasn't there to harm the little ones or their mothers. "I would pull out my scarf, undo my chin strap, and they'd get all big-eyed. They never see American women."

Even at home, few people know about women like Kaelin. In August 2011 Kaelin and 19 other elite female soldiers deployed alongside the Army Rangers for a nine-month stint in the combat zones of Afghanistan; one (see sidebar) was killed in action, and six were wounded badly enough to be sent home early. Publicly, however, the Army didn't talk about any of them.

While women make up 15 percent of active-duty military and accounted for 88 of the 5,353 "hostile death" casualties from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, they were formally banned from ground-combat units until that ban was lifted in January 2013. As commanders in each of the services have until Jan. 1, 2016, to open all roles to women or justify why a certain military job should remain male-only, the story of Kaelin's team is only now coming to light in the book Ashley's War: The Untold Story of a Team of Women Soldiers on the Special Ops Battlefield by Gayle Tzemach Lemmon. (Reese Witherspoon has secured the movie rights.) "Women were in combat from day one in Iraq and Afghanistan," says retired Army Gen. Peter Chiarelli, explaining the semantics of the ban versus the reality in the field. "We could not 'assign' them at the platoon level, so we 'attached' them to units. And there was not a woman out there who did not do amazing stuff."

Caroline Cleveland was one of them. The Military Police team leader was languishing on ceremonial support in Germany ("a 21-gun salute with cannons when the general retired was not what I joined the Army to do," Cleveland says) when, in early 2011, she grabbed the chance to try out for a new 20-woman "Cultural Support Team" to work with Special Ops in Afghanistan, where local religious customs inhibited male soldiers who were hunting terror suspects door-to-door in homes filled with women. Cleveland, Kaelin and the other CSTs—including Ashley White, who would become their first casualty—got a year's worth of training for men's Special Forces boiled down to about seven weeks. Based at Fort Bragg, N.C., the fitness testing was known among the women as "100 hours of hell"—mara-

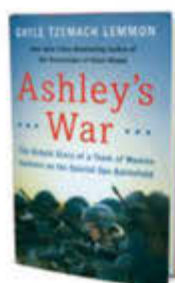

ASHLEY WHITE

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

WHITE, 24, WAS KILLED BY A HOMEMADE BOMB ON A NIGHTTIME MISSION IN AFGHANISTAN. HER FAMILY HAD NO IDEA OF THE DANGERS SHE FACED

White's mom, Deborah White, 60, a school-bus driver from Marlboro, Ohio, talked to PEOPLE about her daughter

Ashley was the firstborn of twins. She went fishing with her brother [Josh] and loved cross-country and track. At Kent State University she joined the ROTC. The camaraderie and the sisterhood clicked with her. That's where she met Jason [Stumpf, whom she married in May 2011]. She graduated a second lieutenant and joined the National Guard. Even when she was trying out for the [Special Forces] program, she never talked much about going to war. She said, "Don't worry about me. I'm with the best of the best." Every Sunday she'd call. In her last conversation with her brother, she sounded scared. A few days later I was in the kitchen making cupcakes and the phone rang. I can still see [Ashley's father, Robert] walking across the backyard, shaking his head. I said, "How bad is she hurt?" He said, "She's not hurt; she's gone." And that's what we live with every day. I make it through most of my days, and at night I usually cry and then go to sleep. They took us to Dover Air Force Base when they brought her body home. We were blown away when her commander told us what she was doing. She was 5'2", 122 lbs., carrying ammo and jumping out of helicopters. We had no idea that she was out there right alongside the Rangers on night missions. I'm very proud. We lost quite a daughter. When they were done with their tour, the seven [team members] came to our house to tell us about Ashley. They told me how Rangers nicknamed her Muffin. They said, "She was hard as a rock on the outside and soft as butter on the inside." She never put any of her ribbons on her dress uniform. She had no desire to show off. She probably is up there shaking her head now because of the book and the movie rights, going, "Why? I just did what I was supposed to do."

They called themselves girls (“‘Girls’ versus ‘women’ is not the fight I’m going to fight,” says Cleveland), wore makeup and served as one another’s cheerleaders. White, the “sweet and kindhearted quiet professional,” Cleveland says, “gave us all our center.” That was a dead-serious commitment to the mission. “In the high school lunchroom, I don’t think I would have found these girls,” says Cleveland. “But on CST-2 we were all duty-driven to fulfill our purpose.”

Once overseas, the women were nicknamed by some men the Pink Team, but Cleveland and Kaelin say their male peers showed them respect. “There were some good ol’ boys and there was a period of feeling each other out, but what they said to us was, ‘Just do your

With a lot of on-the-job training and without publicity—in part because nothing Special Ops does is publicized, but also because, says Kaelin, the Pentagon doesn’t want Americans hearing “that their daughters and mothers and sisters are out there fighting”—the women were out nightly with strike forces, fast-roping off helicopters hovering above insurgent strongholds or charging over mountain terrain on foot. They rounded up women and children to search and question. The intelligence Cleveland, Kaelin and the others coaxed from their subjects—how many men were hiding inside, where explosives were planted—would prove lifesaving to the Ranger regiment. It was a daisy chain of explosives that killed White and two Rangers during a raid in Kandahar Province. But Lemmon, in her book, details several instances where the intelligence the women gathered uncovered deadly traps.

Kaelin, who left a young daughter at home when she deployed, says compassion helped on the job. Her voice breaks remembering that night when an Afghan mother was shot dead in front of her young son after his father made her a human shield. “He was a little boy, barefoot, his clothes were so thin. The dust from the chopper felt like needles against the skin, so I covered him; he clenched onto me supertight. I wanted to take all the children home, make them feel protected.” And then it was time to go home. The women of CST-2, including White and the six wounded, had, by then, all earned Combat Action Badges. The survivors remain close with one another and with the male Rangers both Cleveland and Kaelin (who have since left the military) call “brothers.” Kaelin, who had seven CST bridesmaids at her 2014 wedding, is now a married at-home mom to three girls, one of whom she named after White. Cleveland will start physical-therapy school in August. “A lot of us felt like we had the experience of a lifetime in CST and couldn’t feel fulfilled again in any lesser role,” says Kaelin. Perhaps more women will get that chance. As Lt. Gen. John Mulholland, head of Army Special Operations Command, said at White’s Oct. 30, 2011, memorial service, she and the rest of the women “absolutely will write a new chapter in the role of women soldiers . . . and every single one of them have proven equal to the test.”

WORLD'S
MOST

SHE'S ONE OF HOLLYWOOD'S HIGHEST-EARNING STARS, BUT THE OSCAR WINNER IS HAPPIEST AT HOME WITH HER LITTLE MAN. HOW BEING A MOM CHANGED HER OUTLOOK—AND HER LIFE

Sandra Bullock really does snort sometimes when she laughs. It's one of the endearing traits displayed over lunch after a photo shoot in the Hollywood Hills, where the Oscar winner can't help but be self-deprecating about her appearance. "This is princess mode!" she says, laughing. "This is not how I wake up or go to bed." Yet it's her role as mom to her 5-year-old son Louis that makes her feel most beautiful every day. "When I first held him, I realized what my purpose in life was," she says. "I'm the lucky one." The actress, 50, who voices a supervillain in the upcoming movie Minions, adds, "As long as I'm healthy and strong and I don't let this mind of mine run amok with insecurities about what I am not, I can look in the mirror and like who I see."

What was your reaction when you heard about being on the cover of this issue?

I laughed. No, really. I just said, "That's ridiculous." I've told no one.

So how would you define beauty?
Real beauty is quiet. Especially in this town, it's just so hard not to say, "Oh, I need to look like that." No, be a good person, be a good mom, do a good job with the lunch, let someone cut in front of you who looks like they're in a bigger hurry. The people I find most beautiful are the ones who aren't trying.

Who would you say are the most beautiful women in your life?

I'm surrounded by some of the most beautiful women. My sister is absolutely gorgeous. Her kindness and sweetness are beyond compare; she is irritatingly smart, unwaveringly open-minded and loves me like nobody's business. If you are struggling, the women in my life descend like paratroopers en masse and will not leave your side until they know you are standing on your own two feet again. No judgment, just support.

You have a two- and a three-legged dog. What's beautiful about them?

That they have no idea anything is missing! Ruby is missing her front two legs, but she walks upright like we do, and that's exactly how she goes to the bathroom as well. It's like watching a drunk sailor. Poppy, the three-legger, thinks she's a pit bull. If a man gets within five feet of me, she goes after him. She has no idea she's only 9 lbs.

What do you know today that you wish you had known 20 years ago?

Oh wow, that list is long. But I wish I could go back and tell myself to not worry so much. I wasted so much time with worry. I wish I could get it back.

What do you worry about now?

Am I the mother my son deserves? And am I living my authentic life, am I good enough, working hard enough, am I able to keep my son safe? Did I pick up all the dog poop in the yard before the playdate? Worrying used to be very paralyzing for me, and now I can talk myself off the ledge. Louis is the one who snapped me out of it.

What have you learned about love?

Everything I've learned about love, I've learned from Louis, and that is there is no such thing as being done loving. We have a lot of it.

What's the most beautiful thing about being a mom?

What is beautiful is the honor of being Louis's mother. This week it was listening to him tell me why he was going to marry his girlfriend. But then we were having Sunday dinner, and he said he changed his mind. I just told him, "Always love those who want to love you back and are nice to you." Then we moved back to Legos and "Why are you making me eat broccoli?"

How has motherhood changed you?

Louis asks me some serious questions, and I'm really honest with him

I WISH I COULD GO BACK AND
TELL MYSELF
TO NOT WORRY SO MUCH

on a level he can handle. It's a beautiful thing. I want him to be a good man who is good to women and is really in touch with how he feels.

Does Louis have you wrapped around his finger?

Yes, but I will never let him know it. We have rules. I spoil him in a quiet way. I let everyone else be the aunts and uncles who spoil him, and I'm the one that lays down the law. I think that's healthy.

What does he do to make you laugh?

Dance. It's like a combination of break dancing and Kung Fu fighting with an occasional Downward Dog thrown in for good measure.

What's the best compliment he's given you?

I was putting him to bed and told him that even when I'm old and gray and more wrinkly than I am now, I'll still love him and want to tuck him in. And he asked why I have wrinkles, and I said, "Well, I hope some of them are from laughing so much." And he touched my face and said, "You're not old, you're just happy."

How do you define family?

Your family are people you choose to have in your life. There are so many variations of families out there that are perfect. My family looks nothing like I ever imagined it would. It's better than I ever imagined.

You know there are drumbeats that you might be adding to your brood.

Oh, those drumbeats. I've always said that I could have a house full of kids. But at this time the only kids in my house, other than Louis, are the ones whose parents want them back at the end of the playdate. But if these drumbeaters know something that I don't, I'd appreciate a heads-up on the details so I can pick up some supplies. I'm wickedly unprepared if Louis is getting a sibling this week.

You've said you like raw cookie dough and marshmallow fluff.

Do you also like green juice?

Ahhh, the olden days. I'm a daily fresh green-juice drinker now. I planted a whole garden outside, so I pull the kale and the beets. But it's superfood. Thirty minutes after I drink it, I feel

Her Firsts & Lasts

First kiss

My first boyfriend, who passed away a long time ago. We were at a friend's house on the couch; I must have snuck out. Now I'm thinking, "Where were her parents?!"

First pickup line I heard

I wouldn't know it if it landed on my head. I am the worst.

First pair of killer heels

A nice 5-in. wedge that laced up the leg. I think I was 12 and bought them with my babysitting money. My mom made me return them.

First wardrobe malfunction

The strap to my dress broke at a premiere and my boob fell out. I had gained weight for a role and pushed myself into this shiny dress. My left breast was just like, "I need to breathe!"

Last time I cringed

The first glimpse of "morning face" in the mirror.

Last vice

Twizzlers. For some reason recently I just have to have them.

Last time I cried

Last night. Every night I cry. Literally at the end of the day, there are some tears. It's mostly joy. It's just a release.

Last gift I bought

Bumblebee Transformer. For Louis. Not for me. Did I not say life-size?

invincible; my body's going thank you, thank you, thank you. My sweet tooth is still there, but I'd like to live to a healthy 90, and raw cookie dough isn't the right ingredient for that on a daily basis.

You own Bess Bistro and Walton's bakery in Austin. Do you like to cook and bake?

I think I created the worlds of Bess and Walton's because I knew I would never be able to cook or bake to the level that I dreamed of. I'd rather create the environment and leave the cooking and baking to the experts.

How have your cooking skills changed since becoming a mom?

I was so careful about what I fed Louis, even making his baby food, and I was just like, "Why am I not doing that for myself?" You end up eating their food anyway. We do have a pantry that has all the junk food in it, and we open it and it's like [she sings] "Ahhhhh!" I've never denied it, so he'll eat half and be done. And I'll inhale every piece and then clean other people's plates.

What type of exercise makes you feel most balanced and grounded?

I work out with Body by Simone four to five times a week. I love that it's not big weights, you move the entire time, it's a torture chamber of sorts. When I first started I could barely do 20 seconds, and I'm not kidding. I'm crying on the floor, and she's like, "Are you a smoker?" I was like, "I hate you."

Do you like to be pampered?

When I have time, I love a mani-pedi. Ohhh, the foot massage. It reminds me that I'm a girl, and maybe just for a day and a half I'll act like a lady, and then it's all out the window.

What have you embraced over the years when it comes to your appearance?

I've never been a great beauty. I've never been the bombshell that was coveted. In an odd way, that made growing older a lot easier in this business. I guess I'm doing it on my own terms, and that is my wish for everyone.

What qualities do you find most beautiful in women?

The same qualities I find beautiful in a man—vulnerability and honesty. Kindness is the most important and the ability to laugh at yourself. The most beautiful woman in the world is the one who protects and supports other women.

You once said there's something sexy about a belly. Do you still feel that way?

Oh, yes. On both men and women. Do you really want to date someone that has a more

The first time I wore makeup...
I was forced to remove it. Mom said I was too young.

People tend to approach me when... I'm in a public restroom. But no more under the stall.

People never approach me when... I don't know. They're not approaching me!

When I don't want to be recognized, I... wear a clown suit. Kidding. I only wear a hat when I have dirty hair from working out or it's a bad-hair day.

Without any makeup... I feel like myself.

When I look in the mirror... sometimes I see a mess and sometimes it's not so bad.

My beauty idol is... the women in my life.

I always borrow from... everyone else who is doing it better than I am.

If I weren't an actress, I would be... a hairstylist or an architect. I used to cut Louis's hair myself. And I love bringing a space back to life.

If I had a superpower, it would be... to read people's minds.

I never leave home without... Louis. I know. I need to get a hobby. I will. When he's in college.

ripped body than you, who has a smaller waist? I'm like, I don't want someone with a 12-pack, I mean if it comes, okay. But I like a little bit of beef.

How do you best take care of your skin?

By not wearing makeup most of the time. And sunblock, sunblock, sunblock. I use SPF 100 and I know they say it doesn't work, but if I read 100, I'm good.

You used to think makeup was scary. Is it still?

I've come to love it. But I never wear makeup unless I go out to dinner. Then I'll attempt the smoky eye. It looks like you're already hammered and you had a good time. The first time my son saw me, I went into his room in the dark, and he's looking at me and was like, "What's wrong with your face? You need to go take a bath!" I said, "Honey, this is Momma trying to be sexy." Literally there was a look of horror on his face.

Have you kept any costumes from your movies?

Yes, I have the Gravity spacesuit hanging in my closet next to my event gowns. One of these days it's going to get worn in the carpool lane at school.

So what role have you felt most beautiful in?

The role of mother. I don't feel beautiful in anything I've acted in. I don't watch myself, but I've gotten better about looking at the work. I don't mind aging on film, I just don't feel beautiful. If I see myself on TV, I flip right by it; I do not stop. Louis doesn't know what I do. He's seen a couple of glimpses. He thought I was an astronaut for a while. I want it to be so inconsequential and such a nonissue. I want him to be embarrassed by me like all other parents. I'm going to take him to Minions and see if he recognizes the voice, and if he doesn't then we'll just keep moving. ●

"I learned the hard way that applying self-tanner was anything but an individual task. From my hands to my stomach to my toes, I never knew a body could have so many shades of bronze."

Jennifer Garner

"I heard about a fancy new double-barreled curling iron that created beautiful waves. I decided to try it for a movie and it burned all of my hair in stripes around my head. I had to cut my hair off, stripe by stripe, for the next year."

Drew Barrymore

"Going too blonde and it didn't work. I felt like a yellow bird. I'm in a more natural phase."

Viola Davis

"Microdermabrasion. It dried my skin out. My husband, Julius, finally said, 'I don't see the difference, Vee!' I did about 10 treatments... nothing. So I quit."

Jennifer Aniston

"I remember one of the photo shoots that I did for a magazine back in the first year of Friends. Back in those days the photographer would just tell the hair and makeup artists what he wanted me to look like, and I was way too shy and intimidated to voice any opinion on the subject. So the next thing I knew, I had bleach on my eyebrows, which then left me with white eyebrows and, well . . . nuff said. A look that was gorgeous on Linda Evangelista in the '90s . . . On me? Not so much."

Julianna Margulies

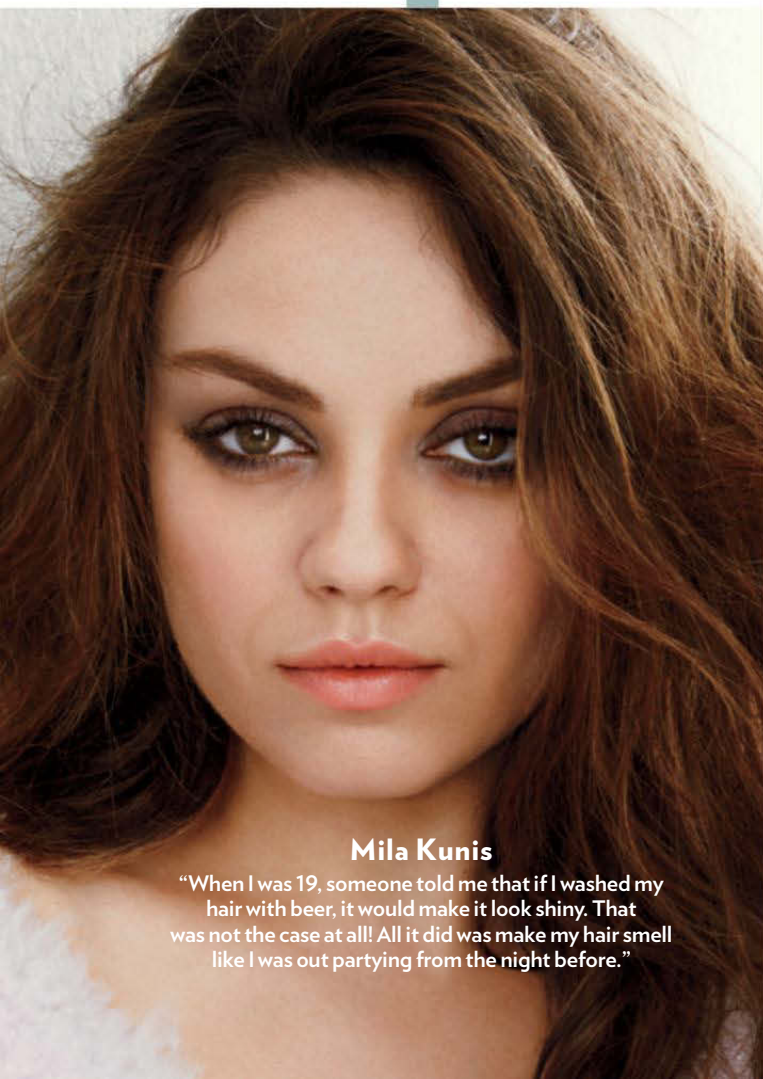

"I was once told that if you put mayonnaise in your hair, it would be very shiny and healthy-looking, so I thought I would give it a shot. Turns out, getting mayo out of your hair isn't so easy. I smelled like egg salad for days and looked like a greasy mess for a week! Needless to say, I have left the mayo on my plate instead of my head!"

WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL

Carrie Underwood

"When I was 13, I got a perm, and it was a big mistake—shocker! It wasn't my first perm, but it most definitely was my last. It took my hair a while to recover, but I learned my lesson—no more perms!"

Mila Kunis

"When I was 19, someone told me that if I washed my hair with beer, it would make it look shiny. That was not the case at all! All it did was make my hair smell like I was out partying from the night before."

Julianne Moore

"I ruined my eyebrows. I started plucking them in the sixth grade because I didn't like how thick they were, and now they won't grow back. I tell my daughter she is not allowed to touch hers. Her eyebrows are perfect."

"I had a botched attempt at being a platinum blonde once.

My hair started to break off in my hands and it turned white.

It was terrible!

I'm meant to be a strawberry blonde. ... No Marilyn for me!"

Katie Holmes

"Well, I did try a juice cleanse ... and I was at Chipotle by noon. If that's not enough, I think the perm that I 'rocked' in grammar school was probably not my best look. However, I felt really cool, and to me that is what beauty is all about—feeling great."

WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL

Julia Louis-Dreyfus

"I thought a short, chic hairstyle would look great on Selina Meyer. Oops—joke's on me. I mean her."

NAUTICA

Gwyneth Paltrow

"I have had a few beauty misses over the years. I did a sort of halfhearted crimp in my hair at the SAG awards one year. I think my eyebrows were a bit overplucked in the '90s. I was very into Drew Barrymore's look at the time, that sort of Bette Davis eyebrow and lip liner, but I don't think I pulled it off."

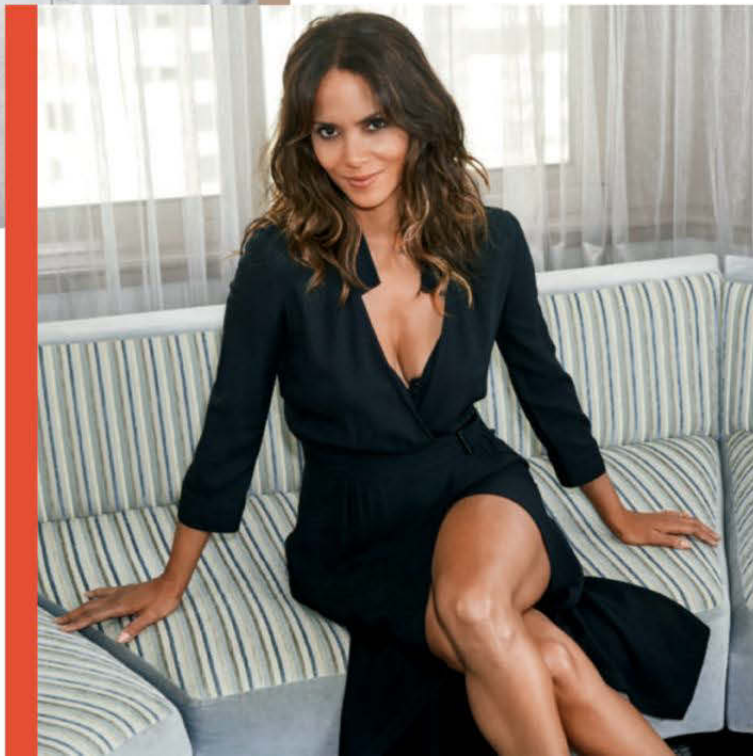

Blake Lively

"I matched my metallic eye shadow to my T-shirts in middle school. The most popular girl in school, Kelsey Rohr, did it, so of course everyone else had to try it. Turns out only Kelsey could rock it. She also looked great in orange Dickies... Damn her."

Halle Berry

"I once tried an egg-white facial, and it took all the moisture out of my skin—for two weeks I looked like a lizard molting!"

Kate Hudson

"I remember once when I attempted a facial self-tanner, and I ended up resembling Magda from There's Something About Mary. Let's just say from then on out I've stuck to bronzer!"

Kerry Washington

"I wore acrylics for a long time, but they made my nails very weak, and when I got pregnant, I was uncomfortable with the chemicals. I like gels a lot better. But I love press-ons. I rock custom-made press-ons on the carpet often!"

Reese Witherspoon

"Brown lip liner really had quite a moment in the late '90s. It was not exactly flattering having a big brown line around my mouth with a super-pale lipstick in the center... But boy, I thought it looked so cool. I also had really plucked-thin eyebrows. I basically looked like an emoji."

Mindy Kaling

"I love that strong brows are so in right now, but when I've tried them on myself, it's a disaster. I look like a cartoon henchman. So I keep them natural, and when I want to make a statement, I'll do a bold lip color."

THE POWERHOUSE

Taraji P. Henson

When it comes to beauty, the Empire star, 44, is fearless (“I’m pretty bold!”) and loyal (“I’ve been using the same face cream—Paul Scerri—for over 10 years”). She’s also fortunate. “I owe my looks to my good genes,” she says. “My grandmother is 91, and she doesn’t look it.”

HOT Right NOW

WHETHER ON THE SCREEN, THE STAGE OR THE RUNWAY, IT'S BEEN AN OVATION-WORTHY YEAR FOR THESE KNOCKOUT PERFORMERS

THE IT GIRL

Gigi Hadid

The 20-year-old SPORTS ILLUSTRATED swimsuit model, face of Tom Ford and friend of Kendall shares three slices of her life:

"I'm good with a cat eye. I have a really steady hand."

"I don't touch my eyebrows, because I'm afraid of messing them up."

"Traveling so much, I've learned to very quickly fall asleep wherever I can."

THE CHAMELEON

Amber Heard

The actress, 29, shifts effortlessly between roles—and can just as easily wear boho chic as high fashion. “My style is my own,” says the Magic Mike XXL star. “I’ve always dressed exactly the way I wanted, never for anyone else or a trend.” But there are a few constants in her life: “Lipstick... and a sense of humor.”

WORLD'S
BEAUTIFUL

THE BREAKOUT

Meghan Trainor

What has the singer, 21, learned from her glam squad since hitting it big with “All About That Bass”? “You gotta fill in your brows,” she says. “It really completes your face. Now when I do my makeup at home, I’m like, ‘I’m missing my eyebrows!’ I’m learning how to do it.”

THE HOT MAMA

Jenna Dewan-Tatum

Since the birth of her daughter Everly, 23 months ago, the actress’s beauty routine has changed drastically. “I want her to be happy and healthy. Worrying about getting another wrinkle just pales in comparison,” the 34-year-old says. “If I get a shower in the morning, I’m good.”

THE QUEEN

Helen Mirren

The icon, 69, rewrites the dictionary: "I wish we could find other words than 'beauty' and 'sexy'. It is very true that 'beauty' is in the eye of the beholder, and 'sexy' even more, and the concept of what is beautiful has changed greatly over the years. However I believe there is such a thing as objective beauty, and I, along with the vast majority of humanity, do not fit into that category. This is my objection to those definitions. The word 'beauty' excludes most of us, and the word 'sexy' is an indefinable mystery of what happens on an intimate level between two people. So let's find other words! 'Appealing'? 'Attractive'? 'Striking'? 'Alluring'? 'Engaging'? All any of us can do is make the best of what we have got and live with generosity and kindness . . . now that would be beautiful."

THE KNOCKOUT

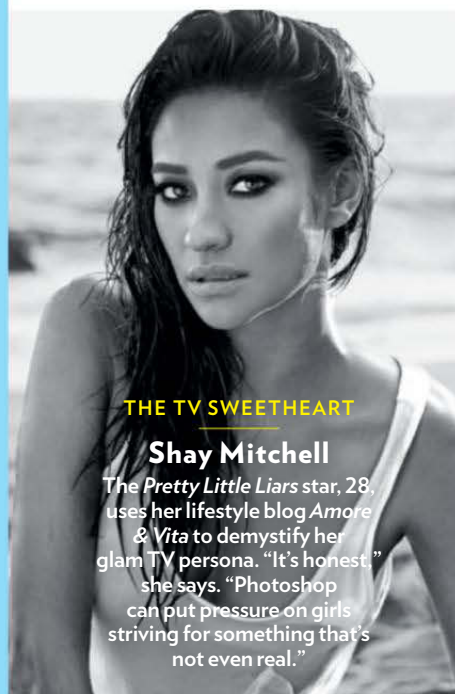

Margot Robbie

"People are always shocked that I'm 24," says the Focus star.

"They are quite adamant I should be in my 30s. I hope that's because of characters I've played and not because of the way I look!"

WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL

THE TV SWEETHEART

Shay Mitchell

The Pretty Little Liars star, 28, uses her lifestyle blog Amore & Vita to demystify her glam TV persona. "It's honest," she says. "Photoshop can put pressure on girls striving for something that's not even real."

THE FUNNY GIRL

Amy Schumer

"I didn't make this money because I'm the most beautiful girl in Hollywood," says the Inside Amy Schumer star, 33. "I'm funny. That's my thing." The actress, next up in the movie Trainwreck, also thinks the idea of beauty is changing—slowly but surely. "People in general just want things to be more real," she says. "They're sick of people presenting this perfect image and pretending like you have it all together. The fact is, no one does."

THE POP STAR

Ariana Grande

Madonna may be her beauty icon, but the "Problem" singer, 21, also has a muse closer to home. "My mom encouraged me to do what I want, wear what I like and say what I feel without apology."

WORLD'S
BEAUTIFUL

THE INDIE STAR

Ellen Page

"Since coming out, I feel a greater ability to be myself without feeling any anxiety," says Page, 28, star of the upcoming drama Freeheld. "To me that is the most beautiful thing—someone who expresses themselves honestly."

THE BROADWAY BABE

Vanessa Hudgens

"I'm growing up, evolving," says the actress, 26, who's now playing the title role of Gigi on Broadway. "I used to feel the most 'Vanessa' with my long hair and that whole bohemian vibe. I'm not necessarily into long, flowy things anymore. I'm starting to like a bit more structure. But I will always love my crop tops!"

THE FAN FAVORITE

Caitriona Balfe

"Thousands of people follow me on Twitter, and I'm not saying anything interesting!" says the Outlander star, 35. Her no-fail beauty tips? "Bun. Mascara. Moisturizer."

WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL

THE AGE DEFIER

Gabrielle Union

The Being Mary Jane star, 42, loves her legs—no thigh gap necessary! "I recognized, for me, that's just not healthy," she says. "I have strong thighs. I'm an athletically inclined person, and this is my shape. And these thighs have carried me on so many dope adventures! I've learned to appreciate them."

THE TRAILBLAZER

Laverne Cox

"My most beautiful memory comes from before I transitioned," says the Orange Is the New Black star and first transgender actress to be nominated for an Emmy. "I was the runner-up in a beauty pageant, and it was the first time I embraced the full feminine presentation. It felt so empowering—like it was something I'd been running away from my whole life."

Kaley Cuoco-Sweeting

with Thor,

a Westphalian warmblood

"People get intimidated because he's so big," says the Big Bang Theory star of her 13-year-old horse Thor. "But he's a gentle soul."

The longtime equestrian, 29, cherishes long rides with her "easygoing" pal. "When I ride, I feel strong and beautiful. Thor makes me fearless." And in return? "His secret obsession is Pop-Tarts," Cuoco-Sweeting confides. "I'm not supposed to give them to him, but every once in a while I do."

Eva Longoria

with Jinxy, a Maltese

"He's an old man," jokes Longoria of 11-year-old Jinxy (named for Mr. Jinx, the cat in Meet the Parents). "He used to be peppy and excited. Now he's pretty mellow."

The pampered pooch—who gets groomed twice a month—enjoys nightly snuggles with the Devious Maids producer. "He's a cuddler," says Longoria, 40. "And in the morning, he has incredible bed head!"

Lea Michele

with Sheila, a rescue cat

It doesn't take much to keep Sheila entertained. "She'll play all day long," says Michele, who found her feline friend in 2009 on the Paramount lot, where her hit show Glee is filmed. "She loves the laser pointer more than anything." And despite the fact that Michele swears she's "not a cat person," the actress, 28, admits she's smitten with this one in particular. "Sheila is the sweetest," she gushes. "I take so many pictures of her. When I'm out, I just show everyone cat photos on my phone!"

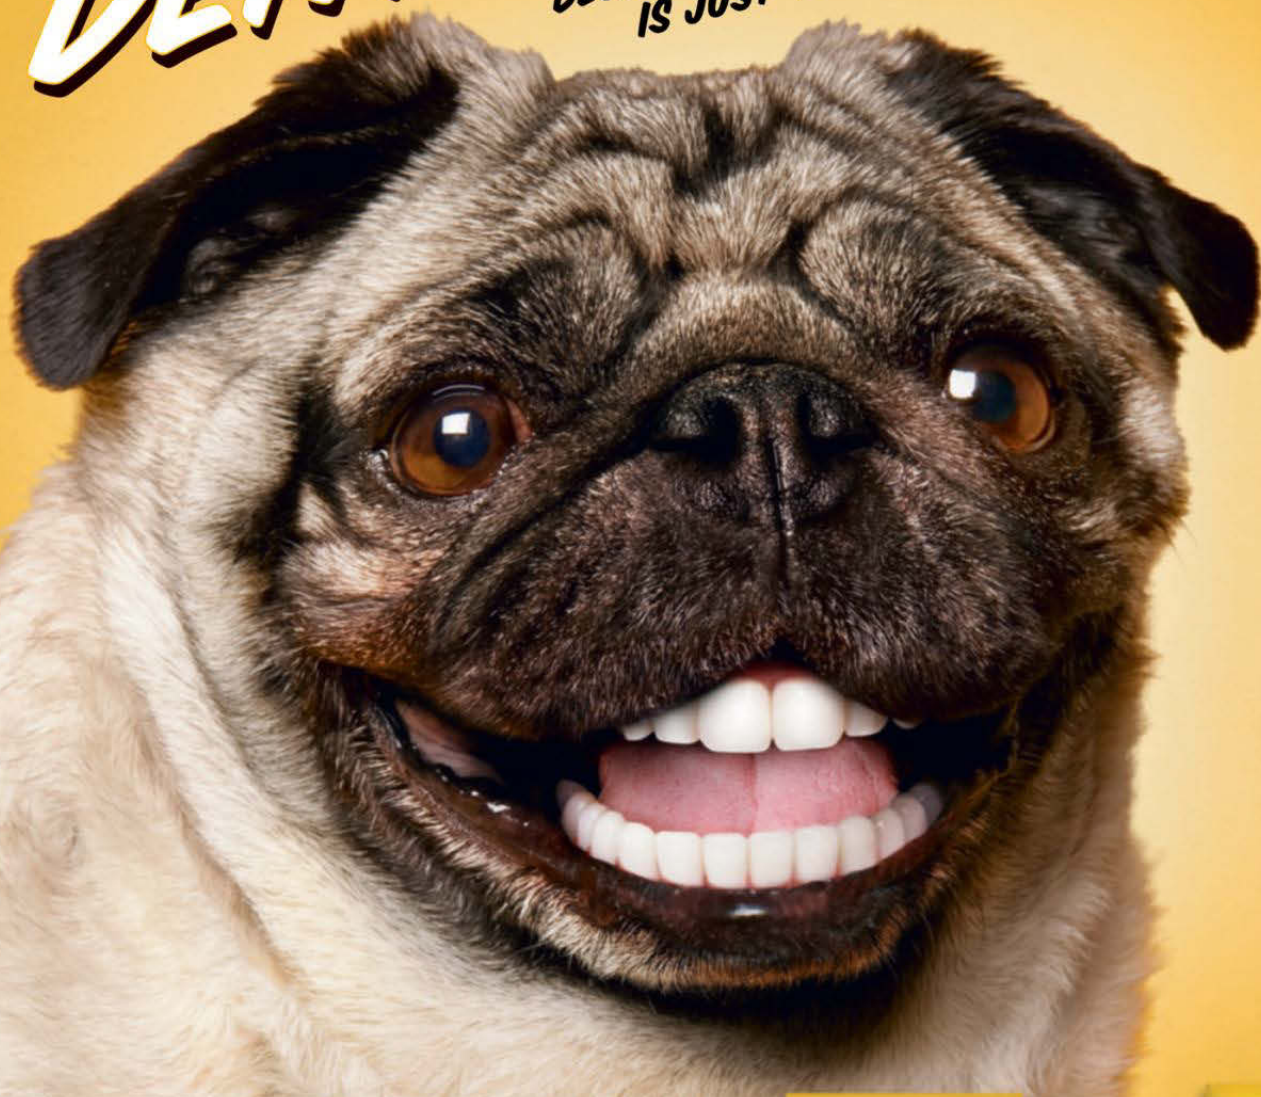

Sandra Lee

umbrella cockatoos*

"Birds bring a certain calm to every room; they have wonderful energy," says the chef and author, 48, who welcomed 10-month-old Halo into her New York apartment last summer as a companion for 4-year-old Phoenix. "They love to have a good time," says Lee. The two aren't super talkative (Halo doesn't speak; Phoenix can only say "Hi" or "Whatcha doing?"), but their personalities still shine through. "Phoenix will dance to AC/DC and Van Halen, while Halo listens to Journey and Cher—she's all girl."

"Pearl was the runt of the pack when I adopted her nearly two years ago," says Cuthbert, 32, a first-time dog owner along with her husband, NHL star Dion Phaneuf. "No one wanted her, so we scooped her up." Now the 22-month-old pup has hundreds of fans on Instagram. "She's naturally photogenic," says the One Big Happy actress. "I think she's giving me the confidence to realize that I can take care of something other than myself."

WITH GOOD LOOKS AND AN INNATE SENSE OF STYLE, THESE 7 WOMEN PROVE IT'S ALL IN THE GENES

Audrey Hepburn & Emma Ferrer

"I remember seeing a photo of her jumping on a trampoline—I believe this was before I understood she was famous," said 20-year-old model Emma, who was born after Audrey died. "But I remember thinking that she looked like a friend I wish I could have had."

Eartha Kitt & Rachel Shapiro

"She was glamorous," says Rachel, 19, a college student at Michigan State University. "I loved watching when my grandma's makeup artist would do her hair and face. That's how I got the knack for it—she would let me sit in."

Loretta Lynn & Tayla Lynn

"We're both kind of petite, and we have the same eye color and cheekbones," says singer-songwriter Tayla, who has toured with her "Memaw." "I get real excited when people tell me I look like her, sound like her or act like her. It's definitely a compliment!"

Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis & Rose and Tatiana Schlossberg

Debbie Reynolds & Billie Lourd

Billie, 22, follows in the footsteps of grandmother Debbie and her mother, Carrie Fisher. She has roles in the upcoming Star Wars: The Force Awakens and the new FOX series Scream Queens. Debbie has said, "It's very exciting to see my granddaughter jumping into the fray."

Ruby Dee & Imani Day

"My grandmother told me to stay true to my natural beauty," says Imani, 25, an architectural designer. "She encouraged me to wear my hair natural and my makeup simple. I'm not nearly as fancy as she was, but she certainly laid the foundation of my style."

"For photo and video shoots, I leave it to the professionals. But on tour, I do my own hair and makeup. I feel like that's my time to focus, calm down, listen to music and warm up a little bit."

What husband Blake Shelton thinks about makeup: "He's one of those dudes that's like, 'You look prettier without it.' He sees me the same, whether I have a whole glam squad or I'm just hanging out at home."

The secret to her dewy skin:

"It is all my mama. Mama, I love you. Thank you so much for passing down these genes. And I definitely drink a lot of water."

Beauty lesson she's learned from playing Jane:

"She doesn't wear much makeup at all. She's the last person who could give me beauty tips! But the thing that I'm constantly reminded of on-set is that you are beautiful the way you are. Makeup is for having fun and enhancing the way you feel about yourself that day. But I never want to mask or cover or change anything about myself."

Padma Lakshmi, 44
Top Chef host

Her intro to makeup: “I’m Indian, and culturally we don’t view makeup in the same way. From the time I was 7 days old, they put a natural eyeliner called kajal on my eyes. Now I let my daughter [Krishna, 5] wear eyeliner on the weekends. Any way I can squeeze a bit of my own heritage into my daughter, I’m going to.”

Favorite beauty tricks: “Tyra Banks and I grew up modeling together, and she taught me how to shade in my nose. And makeup artist Pat McGrath told me to put a little shimmer powder in the Cupid’s bow of your mouth—it makes your lips look poutier. I do that before events. But I’m always eating or drinking something, so it doesn’t last long.”

Room for improvement: “I’m insecure about everything all the time. But if I had to pick one thing that I’m insecure about in terms of my features, it’s my eyebrows. I don’t know how to do them. I’m not a very good groomer. I just feel like my eyebrows could be better.”

Chronic Idiopathic Constipation (CIC)

I’VE TRIED LAXATIVES, BUT THE
CONSTIPATION STILL COMES BACK
LIKE A HEAVY WEIGHT.”

Proactively manage your recurring symptoms with LINZESS®

If you're more than occasionally constipated, you may need something other than laxatives. Maybe it's time to talk to your doctor about your chronic constipation symptoms, and ask about LINZESS, a once-daily capsule approved for adults to help manage Chronic Idiopathic Constipation. "Chronic" means the constipation is long-lasting or keeps coming back. "Idiopathic" means the cause is unknown. LINZESS works differently from laxatives. It is thought to work in two ways: by helping to calm pain-sensing nerves*, and by accelerating bowel movements. LINZESS may relieve your symptoms by allowing you to have more frequent and complete bowel movements that are easier to pass.

Bottom line, if your chronic constipation symptoms keep coming back, ask your doctor about LINZESS today.

*This was seen in animal studies and the relevance to humans is not known.

Who is LINZESS for?

Prescription LINZESS® (linaclotide) is for adults with CIC.

It is not known if LINZESS is safe and effective in children.

IMPORTANT RISK INFORMATION

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age. It may harm them.
- You should not give LINZESS to children 6 to 17 years of age. It may harm them.
- Do not take LINZESS if a doctor has told you that you have a bowel blockage (intestinal obstruction).

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Before you take LINZESS, tell your doctor:

- If you have any other medical conditions.
- If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if LINZESS will harm your unborn baby.
- If you are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if LINZESS passes into your breast milk.
- About all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Side Effects

LINZESS can cause serious side effects, including diarrhea, the most common side effect, which can sometimes be severe.

Diarrhea often begins within the first 2 weeks of LINZESS treatment.

Stop taking LINZESS and call your doctor right away if you get severe diarrhea during treatment with LINZESS.

Other common side effects of LINZESS include gas, stomach-area (abdominal) pain, swelling, or a feeling of fullness or pressure in your abdomen (distension). Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away. These are not all the possible side effects of LINZESS. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

In addition, call your doctor or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away if you develop unusual or severe stomach-area (abdominal) pain, especially if you also have bright red, bloody stools or black stools that look like tar.

What is LINZESS?

LINZESS is a prescription medication used in adults to treat irritable bowel syndrome with constipation (IBS-C) and a type of constipation called chronic idiopathic constipation (CIC). “Idiopathic” means the cause of the constipation is unknown. It is not known if LINZESS is safe and effective in children.

What is the most important information I should know about LINZESS?

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age. It may harm them.
- You should not give LINZESS to children 6 to 17 years of age. It may harm them.

Who should not take LINZESS?

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age.
- Do not take LINZESS if a doctor has told you that you have a bowel blockage (intestinal obstruction).

What should I tell my doctor before taking LINZESS?

Before you take LINZESS, tell your doctor:

- If you have any other medical conditions.
- If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if LINZESS will harm your unborn baby.
- If you are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if LINZESS passes into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby, if you take LINZESS.
- About all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins and herbal supplements.

How should I take LINZESS?

- Take LINZESS exactly as your doctor tells you to take it.
- Take LINZESS one time each day on an empty stomach, at least 30 minutes before your first meal of the day.
- Swallow LINZESS capsules whole. Do not break or chew the capsules.
- If you miss a dose, skip the missed dose. Just take the next dose at your regular time. Do not take 2 doses at the same time.

What are the possible side effects of LINZESS?

LINZESS can cause serious side effects, including:

- Diarrhea is the most common side effect of LINZESS, and it can sometimes be severe. Diarrhea often begins within the first 2 weeks of LINZESS treatment.
- Stop taking LINZESS and call your doctor right away if you get severe diarrhea during treatment with LINZESS.

Other common side effects of LINZESS include:

- gas
- stomach-area (abdomen) pain
- swelling, or a feeling of fullness or pressure in your abdomen (distention)

Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away. These are not all the possible side effects of LINZESS. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

In addition, call your doctor or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away if you develop unusual or severe stomach-area (abdomen) pain, especially if you also have bright red, bloody stools or black stools that look like tar.

Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

How should I store LINZESS?

- Store LINZESS at room temperature between 68°F to 77°F (20°C to 25°C).
- It is important to keep LINZESS in the bottle that it comes in.
- The LINZESS bottle contains a desiccant packet to help keep your medicine dry (protect it from moisture). Do not remove the desiccant packet from the bottle.
- Keep the container of LINZESS tightly closed and in a dry place.

Keep LINZESS and all medicines out of the reach of children.

Need more information?

- This section summarizes the most important information about LINZESS. If you would like more information, talk with your doctor.

Working in fashion as a trim buyer, this Puerto Rico-born beauty is no stranger to big-league glamour. "Everyone is so skinny—and tall!" says the former University of Puerto Rico student. But now that she's turned 30, the single Morales, who's 5'2", says she's dialing back the makeup—and feeling more confident than ever. "I'm giving my skin a break," she explains. "When I was younger, I wanted to cover my freckles, but now I'm like, 'They can be gorgeous.'" And her years in the fashion biz have taught her one universal beauty trick: "Everyone looks better when smiling."

Age 26 • From Surrey • How You Know Her Stars in Cinderella and Downton Abbey

Playing a princess wasn't much of a stretch for James, who remembers her 3-year-old self "sneaking up to my mother's room at a dinner party. I covered my face with her makeup, which I ruined—but the cool thing was that I put it all in the right place!" Winning the role of Cinderella took more than a flawless face. "Ella has courage and kindness, and that makes her a princess," says James, whose beauty icon is her Cinderella costar Cate Blanchett: "She radiates beauty, and that's something that comes from within," says James. "She's stunning!"

Ruth Wilson

Age 33 • From Surrey • How You Know Her Starred in Luther and The Affair

When she was growing up with three older brothers just outside London, “there was no makeup in the house,” says Wilson. “I was climbing trees and trying to keep up with the boys. It’s the last thing I thought about, until my mid-teens.” Now, with her growing stateside popularity, including winning a Golden Globe for The Affair, Wilson can’t avoid the spotlight.

And though she’s often been praised for her perfectly arched eyebrows, which “grow in at a slight right angle—my grandmother had them as well,” Wilson says it has not always been good attention. “People say I look weird, and they think I’ve had Botox.” And in case there’s any question, “my top lip is also au naturel. Beauty is all about individuality and your uniqueness.”

Carmen Ejogo

Age 41 • From London

How You Know Her She played Coretta Scott King in Selma

“Beauty only counts when it comes from within,” says Ejogo, who relays that message to her two kids with ex-husband Jeffrey Wright. The Brooklyn resident notices a difference between American and U.K. culture: “Americans love a hero. In Britain we root for the underdog.”

Rosamund Pike

Age 36 • From London • How You Know Her Starred in Gone Girl

Brilliant as well as beautiful, Pike graduated from Oxford—and she takes an academic approach to beauty. A mother of two, Pike got her body back in record time for the Oscar red carpet five months after giving birth to her son Atom.

“If people are embroidering in Paris to make a beautiful dress, my bit was to do my part,” says the actress, who achieved her goal via treadmill, swimming and weights. Skin and hair care are also “part of my work,” she says. “It’s just self-respect to take care of yourself. Animals do it!”

 “It gives me the protection I need

How You Know Her

Best Actress nominee for The Theory of Everything

After making her stateside splash as Stephen Hawking's wife, Jane, Jones topped best-dressed lists during red carpet season. "I love a strong line on the eye—with a flick of liquid eyeliner," she says. "I grew up watching a lot of French films, and Anna Karenina [with Greta Garbo], so I've been heavily influenced by those looks."

Gugu Mbatha-Raw

Age 31 • From Oxfordshire • How You Know Her

From her roles in Belle, Beyond the Lights and Jupiter Ascending

The daughter of a South African doctor and a British nurse, she was named Best Actress last year at the British Independent Film Awards for her role as a mixed-race woman raised in affluence in the period drama Belle. Gugu, whose full name, Gugulethu, means "our pride" in Zulu, believes that beauty "is more about what brings you joy than how other people view you." But though she can usually be found with no makeup and her hair in a bun en route to yoga, she doesn't shun the spotlight. "I feel as comfortable in gowns as I do in a pair of jeans," she says. "The most important thing is you still got to be you."

Jill Duggar Dillard, 23

Jill, who gave birth April 6 to Israel David, pronounces her look "comfortable and elegant." She likes the side braid and the makeup: "It's springy and adds lift to my eyes. I'm going to have to pick up some tips!"

Jana, 25

"There's one tip I learned from this photo shoot, and it's spraying hair spray on a toothbrush and using that to get the flyaway in place!" says the twin sister of John-David. She calls getting glam "kind of different!"

Jessa Duggar Seewald, 22

"If I could get my hands on these pictures I'm sure I'd use them for my profile pictures for social media," says the expectant mom, who married Ben Seewald in November. "I love the way my hair's done. I love the outfit. It's supercute. Ben likes it too! And they did a good job on makeup."

Jinger, 21

Jinger, who has "naturally crazy, really frizzy hair," says she's used to hand-me-down styles from sister Jessa, "who is amazing with hair. She'll figure out a good style and try it on us."

Joy-Anna, 17

"I don't really enjoy dressing up!" says the tomboy teen, who can lift 145 lbs. in a skirt. "I'm usually out with the boys working. This is about as fancy as I like it." The hairstyle gets higher marks: "The braid is really cool, and it's so me!"

Michelle, 48

The mother of 19 approves of this "date night" look. "It was fun to do those false-eyelash things—I've never done that before. I hope I can take them off!" As for the necklace: "Little ones would be getting their necks wrapped around it!"

"He's in incredible danger," Boyega says of his character, who teams with Ridley onscreen.

Daisy Ridley as Rey

The London-bred newcomer has a key role as a "completely self-sufficient" scavenger on the desert planet Jakku in the new film, opening Dec. 18. Shooting in Abu Dhabi, "you can't even imagine the heat," says the actress, 23. "Stepping onto the set for the first time genuinely was a baptism of fire. To see creatures walking around and speeders chilling in the sand was amazing."

A PEOPLE & ENTERTAINMENT WEEKLY EXCLUSIVE

MEET THE NEW STARS OF STAR WARS!

FANS GOT THEIR BIGGEST PEEK YET AT STAR WARS: THE FORCE AWAKENS AT THE RECENT STAR WARS CELEBRATION IN CALIFORNIA. THESE ARE THE PLOTS, CHARACTERS—AND, YES—DROIDS YOU'RE LOOKING FOR

By Anthony Breznican, Scott Huver and Alynda Wheat

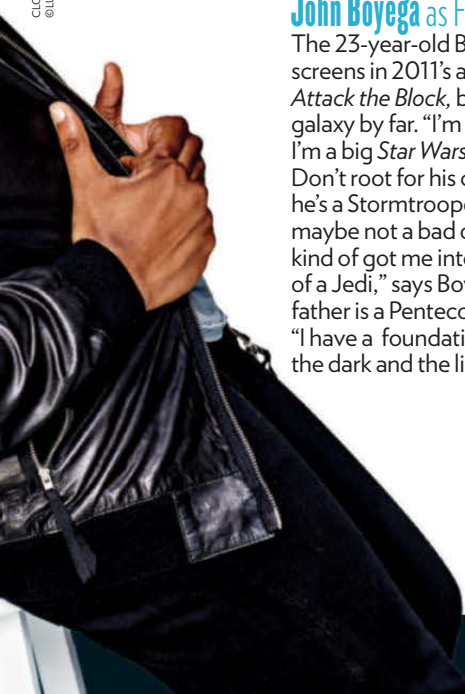

Oscar Isaac as Poe Dameron

Watch out, Solo: Isaac's Dameron is "the best frickin' pilot in the galaxy," says the Guatemalan-born actor (A Most Violent Year). "He's sent on a mission by a certain princess"—might her name rhyme with playa?—says Isaac, 36, noting cryptically that when his character meets Boyega's, "their fates are forever intertwined."

John Boyega as Finn

The 23-year-old Brit first blasted onto screens in 2011's alien-invasion film Attack the Block, but this is another galaxy by far. "I'm going crazy, because I'm a big Star Wars fan," he says. Don't root for his character just yet—he's a Stormtrooper, though maybe not a bad one. "Discipline kind of got me into the universe of a Jedi," says Boyega, whose father is a Pentecostal minister. "I have a foundation between the dark and the light."

PLUS LOOK WHO'S BACK!

THE ORIGINAL CREW

WOOKIEE HERE!

Still recovering from his March 5 plane crash, Harrison Ford (as Han Solo in The Force Awakens) "is doing great and working hard," says director J.J. Abrams.

MEET THE NEW DROID
The remote-controlled BB-8 looks like R2-D2's cousin but rolls like a soccer ball.

One Last Thing

Kyle Chandler

The actor, 49, stars in the new Netflix drama Bloodline

Last time I danced

It was by the pool two days ago with my four dogs. I ended up shaving them all by the barn. I had the music coming from the house and threw the tennis ball, so they were jumping in and out of the water, and I was dancing. But I don't dance in front of people, I can tell you that.

Last time I was embarrassed

I'm good at embarrassing myself. Really good. But usually any type of embarrassment that I have ends up being a positive, because I have no problem laughing at myself.

Last movie I watched

It was Casablanca with my wife [Kathryn] the day before yesterday. She's taking a college screenwriting class, and she's finding out timing and how scripts are written.

Last time I was recognized

I just came into the hotel and almost every single person I walked past said, "Welcome back, Mr. Chandler," which was strange. I didn't realize until I got to my room, but I think it was because Bloodline just came out and they're maybe aware of who I am again [Laughs].

Last moment of bliss

Holding my wife. But I don't think you can print the last romantic thing I did for her.
